

His companions, frightened, turned back and decided to give Rosetta back to the farmer who needed her so much.

And so Adelette's father saw the men who had robbed him arrive.

The young girl left the Hermit after thanking him .

She returned to the family farm, embraced her father who showered her with kisses.

And life went on quietly and never again was the sinister Baron de Noirdame heard of!

shame he jumped to take refuge under a large stone that was there!

He felt his strength leave him and with a last hiccup he turned into a green frog. He wanted to scream but from his mouth came only a poor ridiculous croak. And in

At first he felt a cold shiver go down his back and, after a few moments, his hands and feet began to itch like never before...

Rosetta, still tied up, was following him. Meanwhile, the unsuspecting Baron de Noirdame arrived near his castle. And When she learned of Noirdame's misdeeds, she became very angry, frowned and muttered strange-sounding incantations... Something was going to happen, for sure!

Deep in a forest in Brittany lived an old hermit whose wisdom was praised by all... His home was a dark cave that he shared with a colony of bats that had become accustomed to him.

Not far from there stood the towers of a gloomy castle where the cruel Baron de Noirdame lived. He was a cruel and greedy lord whose main occupation was to starve the peasants of his domain.

One day, while riding with his men, he stopped at a miserable farm and took it into his head to confiscate the only cow he owned from the peasant.

Mercy, Lord... Rosetta's milk is the only food we have left for our last born...

He did not have to wait long... a fairy appeared in a trail of gold and silver dust. It was the fairy of the springs, the one who made sure that the streams of water never ran dry.

The hermit sat down and whistled softly between his teeth...

The old man knew of Noirdame's cruelty and, leaving the girl, went to the nearby fountain. A spring of crystalline water came out of the ground and flowed into a large stone basin...

The hermit was at the entrance of his cave and saw Adelette approaching. She told him what had happened and asked for his help.

But the baron slapped him so hard with his hand that the poor man was left on the ground with blood.

Adelette, the eldest daughter, was hiding in the barn and when the baron left, taking Rosetta with him at the end of a rope, she rushed towards her father who was lying on the ground.

Father, such crimes cannot go unpunished! This wicked lord will pay the price for his cruelty! I will go and ask the hermit for advice!

She lifted her father up, cleaned his wound and then walked away into the forest.
